Society to Have Brilliant Week.

By MILDRED MARSHALL KOONCE.

ODAY will usher in a week replete with national as well as social distinction, including as it does a Presidential wedding day. Idle curiosity and vigorous speculation have been set at rest, and the now knows that the marriage of the Chief Executive and his lovely fiancee, Mrs. Norman Galt, will be the quietest of home affairs in the drawing room of Mrs. Galt's modest home in Twentieth street. But with the honeymoon destination still a secret, speculation in is no danger of stagnation. The belief seems to grow that the Mayflower, which rides at anchor in the Potomac, may be merely a decoy; others, in a position to know, say that the honeymoon will be spent at one of the handsome country estates near Washington, where the President may be near at hand should some exigency arise in the affairs of state, while still others cling to the "special train" idea and a honeymoon spent in the Southland .

But the actual question of the date and character of the wedding Tere mony being effectually settled, Capital hostesses are giving their attention to the evolution of a program of unprecedented brilliance for this season which is to be so inexhaustible in its social possibilities. Prognostications as to the activities of the Congressional set are rather fruitless just now, as so few of the Congressional matrons came to Washington for the opening of the sessions at the Capitol. The great influx will no doubt follow the Though festivities are already in full swing in all circles of Washington society, the official world is perparing for a wave of brilliant hospitality which will sweep the Capital with the coming of the delegates from Central and South America to attend the second pan-American scientific congress. The distinguished visitors will be accompanied by their wives and daughters, whose striking Latin beauty and chic apparel will be a charming and colorful note in the festivities given in their honor.

Every type of hospitality from balls and dinners to luncheon's and motor drives will occupy the eleven-day so-journ of the delegates, and the Executive reception in compliment to the visitors, is an innovation which distinguishes the congress in social annals and likewise opens the season of official levees at the White House.
